POLITICAL NEWS AND GOSSIP

Democrats Claiming California by 10,000 Majority.

SITUATION IN NEW YORK STATE.

[illegible] Scandal to be Dragged Into Court—[illegible] of the State Convention—The [illegible] Butler Boom—Etc.

[illegible] Aug 12.—[Special.]—The Sun's Washington [illegible] has the following points: It has been [illegible] among Blaine's close friends that he [illegible] recovered from the shock that Guiteau's [illegible] him. He was arm in arm with Garfield when the assassin fired. He saw the president [illegible] and he believed the next shot would [illegible] himself. The effect of that shot was shown in his own state as the [illegible] He is convinced he has organic disease, and the best physicians in the country have [illegible] he is wrong; he will not believe them. [illegible] pained his friends by asking the [illegible] He told him the little pools [illegible] on the rocks of the coast was a [illegible] He thinks it [illegible] and he was [illegible] from them and bathing. His face [illegible] During the past winter, when he [illegible] presidential [illegible] who wanted to [illegible] about his nomination he surprised them by his indifference and he told them he would rather live in peace than to be president and die in office. For a few days after the convention met he seemed to be like his [illegible] he was [illegible] animated, displayed to [illegible] some of the energy that was characteristic of him in the days of his prime, but that [illegible] After the democratic convention [illegible] conviction that he cannot be elected [illegible] with it his depression of spirit. He is despondent, and those who are near [illegible] realize that unless this hypochondria can [illegible] all work of the canvass must be done [illegible] help from him.

THE SITUATION IN CALIFORNIA.

[illegible] of the states from which the committee [illegible] received bad news, it will be found that [illegible] to justify alarm. Beginning with the report comes that Blaine's popularity [illegible] San Francisco. Republicans [illegible] they fear the state is hopelessly democratic. There will be no great republican defection [illegible] the German and the prohibition vote [illegible] any serious inroads in the party, but the republicans have gained no strength [illegible] some years while the democrats have [illegible] received set the state down as a [illegible] by 10,000 yet with Ben Butler running [illegible] anti-monopoly ticket, strange things may [illegible] The state has turned over to [illegible] largely because of the intense anti-[illegible] feeling there. The labor vote is large, probably well organized. It will nearly all [illegible] The anti monopolists unquestionably [illegible] balance of power in the state. In fact [illegible] a plurality of anti monopolists in California [illegible] are feeling more deeply about this [illegible] people in the east have any idea of [illegible] get a very large vote from them. [illegible] it will come from the part [illegible] of this canvass to California.

BUTLER'S STRENGTH.

[illegible] have been received here in which the [illegible] made that Butler will receive a larger [illegible] Blaine and some enthusiasts there insist [illegible] carry the state. Cleveland's nomination [illegible] He simply represents the [illegible] a man who was elected by nearly 20,[illegible] If the democratic party is whipped [illegible] it will be simply on account of Cleveland's nomination.

[illegible] are received from the state that [illegible] party will concentrate its vote on two or [illegible] from Nevada that cheers the re[illegible] either by the committee here or [illegible] The state is confidently claimed by [illegible] managers and is privately conceded [illegible] The rich republicans who [illegible] are there no longer and the rich [illegible] continually live in this absurd rotten [illegible] people will take care that money [illegible] provided to keep up the very good demo[illegible] they have there.

POLITICAL POINTS.

[illegible] Scandal to be Dragged Into Court—[illegible] Words for Butler—Etc.

[illegible] City, Mo., Aug 12.—The democratic [illegible] nominate state officers met here to day. [illegible] Hardin was elected permanent chairman. [illegible] of the committee on resolutions was [illegible] evening by a contest over the tariff [illegible] the national plank on that subject [illegible] with opposition. A platform was [illegible] and adopted without discussion. It [illegible] the declaration of principles made [illegible] national convention recently held [illegible] and pledges earnest support to Cleveland [illegible] The action of the Missouri delegation [illegible] congress is also briefly approved. [illegible] at some length to the economical administration of every department [illegible] government since it passed into the [illegible] democracy. The remaining planks [illegible] the control of the people of the [illegible] of Missouri's debt about ten [illegible] of the public school and [illegible] of taxation. It is declared [illegible] democratic party originated the public [illegible] of Missouri and stands pledged [illegible] popular education in the [illegible] The platform concludes with the [illegible] that the democrats are the especial [illegible] the people saying the party reiterates [illegible] hostility to monopoly tendencies and de[illegible] battle for the masses in the [illegible] supremacy [illegible] Marmaduke was nominated for [illegible] the first ballot by a vote of 332 to 61 [illegible] other candidates [illegible] were taken for lieutenant governor [illegible] and the convention adjourned till [illegible]

REV. BALL WANTS DAMAGES.

[illegible] August 12.—[Special.]—Yonkers [illegible] scandal is to be dragged into court. [illegible] at least Rev. Dr. Ball, of Buffalo, who [illegible] has begun action against the Herald for [illegible] the damages at $25,000. The alleged [illegible] contained in the following dispatch printed [illegible] Herald from Louisville, Kentucky [illegible] who originated the slander on Governor [illegible] it was learned used to live down in [illegible] Indiana. A Courier-Journal representative [illegible] was down at Owensville yesterday [illegible] several prominent people from [illegible] was learned that a number of [illegible] Ball [illegible] to a small congregation [illegible] money under various [illegible] in whom no trust could [illegible] became noted as a liar, but [illegible] a little too much bad whisky [illegible] He finally was expelled from the [illegible] He is well known in [illegible] Republicans as well as democrats [illegible] friend of the country. These [illegible] verified at any time [illegible]

NEW YORK LABOR CONVENTION.

[illegible] N. Y., Aug 12.—The labor convention [illegible] the executive committee [illegible] honorable means in their [illegible] direct representatives nominated [illegible] and that it is the [illegible] localities where such action may [illegible] practical aid from [illegible] the state. Also that we demand of [illegible] the state the passage of a law [illegible] labor bureau, [illegible] labor bureau [illegible] workingmen and citizens of [illegible] labor of the United States [illegible] recommend the passage of laws [illegible] head money on all emigrants $10 [illegible] to stop the influx of paupers to this [illegible] so raised by tax to be used as a fund [illegible] benefit of all emigrants [illegible] were adopted demanding the passage [illegible] prohibiting the [illegible] of work or the pur[illegible] required by the state to [illegible] employer other than union men. A [illegible] Governor Cleveland [illegible] had been introduced and a num[illegible] out of order as not properly before the [illegible]

BLAINE MAKES A SPEECH.

[illegible] Me., Aug 13.—At a public meeting [illegible] calls were made for Blaine and as [illegible] Three cheers for [illegible] president of the United States, and [illegible] given. Blaine said: My friends, I [illegible] to speak but to hear. I have [illegible] to attend every political [illegible] in Kennebec [illegible] and so I come from [illegible] to see if they were [illegible] for your suffrage [illegible] with ardor I never [illegible] laying upon you [illegible] determining [illegible] enjoyment of hearing [illegible] I am as anxious for [illegible] I yield the platform to [illegible]

[illegible] BUTLER.

[illegible] an interview [illegible] would have [illegible] Butler and inde[illegible] support [illegible] element which [illegible] many Irish votes will be cast for [illegible] would go to Cleveland [illegible] object to [illegible] because [illegible] the Irish [illegible] are going [illegible] It might be very shrewd political [illegible] Hendricks. Should [illegible] would have great influence [illegible]

[illegible] to the fall and [illegible] democrats [illegible] republicans Butler [illegible] may be [illegible]

[illegible] Special.—Sun's editorial [illegible] democracy that nothing [illegible] necessary to [illegible] task of [illegible] republican [illegible] the democratic [illegible] Samuel B. [illegible] convention [illegible] for the demo[illegible] would already be secured.

THE NEW YORK DEMOCRACY.

[illegible] Aug 12.—The executive committee of [illegible] state committee have elected W. F. [illegible] It was said at headquarters that [illegible] had never been elected chairman [illegible] having been suggested in connection [illegible] When this suggestion had been con[illegible] he at once declined, on account of liberal. The committee to-day organized for the [illegible] Mr. Cooper was present at the meeting and on his motion Mr. Smith, who is a warm personal friend of Governor Cleveland, was elected.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

WASHINGTON, Aug 12.—[Special.]—The republican congressional committee is sending out Miller's speech on the necessity for a navy by the wagon load.

Ex Congressman Page has not any faith in democratic promises of civil service reform. He said to day: If I was a clerk I would gladly give every dollar that I could spare. If the democrats should come [illegible] there would be a general sweep in the departments. Speaking of the outlook he said: Blaine will carry every northern state.

JEFF DAVIS SLIGHTED.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—[Special.]—A Georgia editor having returned from the democratic convention via Washington publishes this: In the office of Secretary Lincoln are portraits of all his predecessors except that of Jefferson Davis. The first thing done when the change of administration comes ought to be the putting of the noble face of the grand old hero of the Mexican war and one of the best [illegible] secretaries of the department in all the history of the union in its proper place.

LOUISIANA DOUBTFUL.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—[Special.]—The Tribune's Washington special says: Kellogg recently arrived here and says Louisiana is a doubtful state. There is good reason to believe that the electoral ticket to be selected by sugar packers and others interested in protection to American industries will be approved by the republican state committee and be elected.

THE NEW PENNY PAPER.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—[Special.]—Halstead's penny paper, the New York Extra, which appears this evening, is the rise of the New York News and claims to be modeled from a Parisian journal devoting the bottom part of each page to a serial after the French pattern. It announces itself a lively supporter of Blaine and Logan.

NOT CLEVELAND.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—[Special.]—The Sun answers a correspondent who inquires which candidate would stand the best chance in a civil service examination. Probably Butler, possibly Blaine, certainly not Cleveland.

STEALING THUNDER.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—[Special.]—The World is [illegible] the Sun's thunder [illegible] ends all editorials with "turn the rascals out."

THE SITUATION IN NEW YORK.

Cleveland Opposed in his own City and County—Republican Success Assured.

WASHINGTON, Aug 12.—[Special.]—Hon. A. M. Clapp has just returned from quite a lengthy visit to New York. He was asked to-day about the condition of things in his state. "I have but one story to tell about New York," was the reply. "I never in my life knew our side to be in such good shape at this stage of the campaign. Our people are awake or [illegible] county will give a large majority against Cleveland. His own city—Buffalo—will be against him by a large vote. Every town in the county is strongly organizing to defeat him, and my views are that Erie county furnishes but a type of what is going on all through the state. If the election should be held to-morrow Cleveland would be snowed under by a majority of 75,000. Cleveland was elected by republicans. They have deserted him now, and will return to their republican [illegible]."

THE CAUSES.

"What are the causes which will lead to his defeat?"

"They are many. The Irish workingmen are [illegible] then the scandals, which [illegible] the only act [illegible] a very bad effect upon his prospects among the religious people of the state. In fact they are hurting him badly all over the country. I speak more for New York because I have just been there and know whereof I speak."

"What are the New York democrats doing?"

"As far as I could see they are doing very little, but [illegible] as they have not got down to work yet. You see Cleveland has gone to the northern woods with his letter of acceptance and they do not know exactly where they stand. There is no heart in the democrats of the western part of the state. I suppose they are working hard in New York city, where they are very strong and very active."

OUR HARD TIMES.

[illegible] August 1.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Knowing how much your paper is relied upon by the people for information and realizing that the dullness of the times here is only temporary and largely caused by the constant hue and cry of hard times, and also that the near future will develop a period of prosperity that few now dream of, I have been surprised that THE OREGONIAN has had so little to say that would tend to restore confidence and encourage the people to renewed activity.

Many of our citizens have no correct idea as to the causes that have conspired to bring about the present stagnation, and are therefore unable to form a correct opinion as to when a change may be expected.

While our wisest men could not foresee the disasters that have overtaken the country, yet all expected great changes upon the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad, as, for instance, that the mercantile community would be brought in close competition with eastern merchants, and only by the wisest manipulation would they be able to hold the interior trade. Time has proved this to be true, and the result of their judicious efforts to hold the trade in opposition to eastern merchants has been, with the assistance of the railroad company, all that could be reasonably expected. More energy might have been expended profitably in this direction; therefore any one can see that this change in the trade of the country has had but little, if any thing, to do with the present dullness of times. Now, as I view it, the following list of untoward circumstances is responsible for all our woe:

The wheat crop was killed by frost in the winter of 82-3, followed by the worst drouth ever known here, causing a short grain crop and an immense loss to the country. Then the European market was poor and freights high, causing heavy losses to all who dared handle wheat. The completion of the railroads and the suspension of work, throwing [illegible] of employes [illegible] men and teams, and the [illegible] stopping of large expenditures of money. The [illegible] brought much less than the usual amount of money. [illegible] and dull sale [illegible] short many millions. The collapse in railroad securities causing a withdrawal of [illegible] and loss of many millions more of ready cash, thus causing the destruction of numerous [illegible] and bringing [illegible] much wild speculation.

The circumstance above cited caused men to [illegible] more largely than ever before, and the [illegible] of the mortgage tax law began to manifest itself, making it almost impossible for the man that was [illegible] to borrow, and [illegible] the money away from the state and forcing the foreign banks to withdraw their money as fast as it [illegible] The former legislature [illegible] that law is not consistent in his actions. If he were trying to [illegible] a horse [illegible] whip in his face and throat [illegible] power, but with [illegible] he would invite the confidence of [illegible] friend.

[illegible] league of mishaps as the foregoing [illegible] befall any other state in the union in so short a period [illegible] how has it left us?

Many [illegible] work is scarce and the money [illegible] a better chance to [illegible] than [illegible] and he is using his privilege [illegible] by being a firm believer in the adage: Make hay while the sun shines.

The hard times of the past year have forced economy upon the people. We are now harvesting the largest and best grain crop that we have ever had, and at the low price of $1.20 per cental or [illegible] per bushel it will bring more money than any previous grain crop.

The [illegible] crop never was better and the price will be good at Eastern [illegible] offering 40 cents per pound. The wool clip was large, though prices low. Immigration is pouring into the state and many bringing [illegible] the reaction is [illegible] felt.

Railroad matters are being adjusted and their completed works will soon be pushed to completion. The Oregon Short Line will make connection this fall, giving us two roads east. Gold and silver mines are being discovered and worked.

[illegible] men from the East are now [illegible] attracted to this country. No season [illegible] representing wealth or capital [illegible] coming. Our rivers will [illegible] to improve by the government. The legislature next winter will undoubtedly [illegible] amend the assessment and mortgage tax law [illegible] capital [illegible] invited [illegible] I view [illegible] While business [illegible] in the East [illegible] in this the [illegible] states [illegible]

CANNIBALISM IN THE ARCTIC.

The Greely Party Subsist on the Flesh of Dead Comrades.

A HORRIBLE TALE THAT IS NOT DENIED.

Private Henry Shot and Eaten by Famished Men—Hazen and Chandler Refuse to Make Statements of the Horror.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—[Special.]—The Times has two columns [illegible] giving a new [illegible] points in the Greely expedition showing that the horrors have not all [illegible] told. The article says: Written documents now [illegible] of the navy department at Washington add to the [illegible] miserable human suffering already published in connection with the ending of the Greely relief expedition the most [illegible] stories of inhumanity and cannibalism. All the facts have been in the possession of Chandler for nearly three weeks, but [illegible] has the naval officers [illegible] is maintained the silence imposed upon [illegible] that not even an inkling of the true [illegible] horrible condition of affairs has [illegible] reached the public ear. For the sake of [illegible] and the [illegible] of people the army authorities [illegible] keep the matter hushed, but [illegible] official investigation which is almost sure to [illegible] the facts in all probability will come out.

THE HORRORS OF CANNIBALISM.

The sufferings and privations of the men in their canvas hut during the long bitter winter have not half been told. It has been published that after game gave out, early in February, they lived principally on sealskins, lichens and shrimps. As a matter of fact they were kept alive on human flesh.

When the rescuing party discovered the half starved survivors their first duties were to look for the two men who were insensible from cold and privations, even to the point of death. One of them, Gorman, was [illegible] in his delirium. Oh! he shrieked as the sailors took hold of him to lift him tenderly, don't [illegible] me as they did poor Henry! Must I be [illegible] eaten as Henry was? Don't let them do it! Don't, don't!

The sailors were horrified but at once reported the man's words to Commander Schley. After a brief investigation he felt satisfied that the poor fellow was speaking the truth and that some of the men who perished had been stripped of their flesh to keep their surviving comrades alive.

SCHLEY MAKES AN INVESTIGATION.

Schley prepared to make thorough work of it. When the horrible reality was brought out [illegible] he did not propose to leave it rest solely on his own or [illegible] testimony. He instructed two or three gentlemen, among whom was Dr. Ames, surgeon of the Bear, to make a careful examination and put their conclusions in writing. This was done and the reports are now in the hands of the navy department.

Lieutenant Greely was decidedly averse to having the bodies of the buried men disturbed. He thought it wise as they had been buried [illegible] to let them remain in their Arctic graves. Commander Schley did not agree with him and the bodies were dug from their graves in a little hill just back of the permanent camp [illegible] Most of the blankets contained nothing but a heap of white bones, many of them picked clean. [illegible] remains could be identified by [illegible]

By inquiries Commander Schley discovered that many of the seventeen [illegible] who are said to have perished from starvation had been eaten by their famishing comrades. It was the [illegible] last resort provided supplies had not arrived. Death stared the hungry crazed men in the face, but there was hope if life would hold out for even a few weeks.

It is reported that the only men who [illegible] the knife were three or four who died of scurvy. The amputated limbs of a man who afterward perished were eagerly devoured as food.

HENRY KILLED AND EATEN.

Chas. B. Henry's death was particularly tragic. He was a young [illegible] man with [illegible] relatives in this country and joined Company [illegible] Fifth cavalry in Cincinnati. His friends tried to dissuade him from going on the expedition, but his spirit of adventure was aroused by tales of Arctic exploits and [illegible] determined [illegible] frightful hunger Henry saw an opportunity to steal a little more than his share of the rations and he made the attempt. He was found out and shot for his crime. In [illegible] published [illegible] report the death of this man was [illegible] as having occurred in June. When the body was found his hands and face, though shrunken, were intact, [illegible] but nearly everywhere else the skin had been stripped from him and the flesh picked from the bones. Even his heart and lungs were eaten by his comrades. One [illegible] was found [illegible] by a bullet [illegible] another [illegible] lead were attached. A [illegible] was found in the skin. The body was in this condition when it was interred in Cypress Hill cemetery last Saturday. The letter of his friend [illegible] Neb [illegible] looking forward [illegible] probably [illegible] to light.

THE MATTER KEPT SECRET.

Whether the [illegible] which were sworn to [illegible] would have admitted the existence of this story of horrible cannibalism [illegible] not be learned [illegible] the navy department gave all the particulars as told by the survivors. At first they were loth to talk of the horrible experience they had passed through, but after promises of secrecy their evidence was all taken in writing. Lieutenant Greely said he wished the men had been rescued by the army instead of the navy.

Of course it was impossible to keep the actual state of affairs from the crew, but absolute silence was imposed upon them. The officers were not allowed to talk of what had occurred in their presence. One man who openly spoke in the mess room about the inhumanity of using fragments of human flesh as bait for shrimps was openly reprimanded. Not a word of the facts was given to anybody until Commander Schley made his report to Secretary Chandler.

A Times reporter questioned a few of the officers on the three relief ships as they made fast to their moorings at the navy yard last evening. Some of them answered flatly that the bodies of the dead soldiers were not at all mutilated when they were found and scouted all idea of cannibalism. Others admitted that the bodies were shockingly [illegible] but attributed it to storm and ice. The eating story they believed to be a [illegible] yarn. The remains [illegible] men were wrapped in clothes as soon as possible after they were dug up and some of the party did not see them at all.

SCHLEY REFUSES TO BE INTERVIEWED.

Commander Schley declined to give anything to day about the state of the bodies any more than he gave to the public in his first official dispatch.

"Did you see Henry's body?" he was asked.

"I did not."

"Of what did he die?"

"Starvation or scurvy, I believe, the same as the others."

"Do you know whether he was shot?"

"I [illegible] reported [illegible]" Commander Schley hurriedly [illegible] positively declined to be interviewed.

THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Aug 12.—The horrible story published in the New York Times that the starving survivors of the Greely party [illegible] have fed upon the dead bodies of their comrades and that written documents are in possession of the navy department to substantiate the terrible narrative, created a great sensation here. Admiral [illegible] acting secretary of the navy, was [illegible] by newspaper men anxious to ascertain [illegible] concerning the publication. The Admiral [illegible] that there is absolutely nothing in the navy department confirming the story, and he discredits the truth of it. It is possible however that a report of [illegible] nature may have [illegible] direct to Secretary Chandler in New Hampshire and [illegible] documents are forwarded to him without examination here. Some persons express the opinion quietly that there is something in the story and say that it is beginning to be known that the Greely party was not as harmonious as has been generally supposed, and that there is a story connected with the expedition which it was intended to conceal but must come out in the same way that the history of the Jeannette's unfortunate cruise came to be known to the public.

HAZEN INTERVIEWED.

The Times' story was shown General Hazen, who at first was very non-committal, but finally, with decided emphasis, he said: "There are certain facts connected with the matter that I am not at liberty to mention. It is very probable, though I do not say so officially, that it will be made the subject of congressional investigation next winter. The story contains some instances [illegible] totally [illegible] refer to the [illegible] those who suffered the [illegible] legs and arms in order to preserve their lives."

General Hazen was asked [illegible] the statement that young Henry had been shot and his body eaten.

"That is a subject [illegible] upon which I must decline to be interviewed."

"Is the report that Captain Schley [illegible] and Secretary Chandler [illegible] the [illegible] vessels [illegible] informed you that the survivors had eaten their associates false?" was asked.

"That is [illegible] true."

"There is no truth in [illegible] the remainder of the [illegible] published stories that [illegible] I will not say that they are not true. I have but casually glanced at the published story [illegible] other than [illegible] which I [illegible]"

RUMORS AT FORT MONROE.

"Did you hear any [illegible] while at [illegible] that the [illegible] had been eaten?"

"There were rumors [illegible] that kind [illegible] My [illegible] would not allow me to give them [illegible]"

"There are facts that [illegible]"

"I [illegible] answer that I had a long interview with Lieutenant Greely, but the [illegible] of eating [illegible] was not referred to. I [illegible]"

[illegible] the Greely [illegible]

"Has Secretary Chandler received any reports [illegible] this subject?"

"Not that I know of. I have [illegible]"

"Is the report that Private Henry was shot and afterward eaten true?"

"There were rumors at [illegible] that he had been killed and the [illegible] his body, but I decline to state any facts in the case that I might know."

"Will the shooting be the subject of investigation by the war department?"

"Not necessarily. Men are shot every day in mutinies and no investigation is made. Under some circumstances it might be proper."

"Will there be any investigation of the report of the eating of bodies?"

"An investigation could not be made by either the war or the navy department. That is a matter congress will have to look into. Then all the facts will be presented, and until then nothing will be given out."

Mr. Hazen says Lieutenant Greely's report of the entire expedition will probably be forwarded to him within a month.

OPINION AMONG OFFICERS.

While it was generally conceded there were no [illegible] Washington that at [illegible] the story [illegible] army and navy officers among themselves did [illegible] think it an impossibility by any means. Said a navy officer in the corridors of the navy department: "Though there is no reason I know of for believing the story, the fact that there are no records to substantiate it does not disprove it at all. I look at it as true. Is there anything improbable about it? You and I standing here, with all the comforts about us, view such things with dread and horror, but you must remember those men were reduced to such a condition that their moral faculties were blunted. They should not be considered, in fact, as responsible agents. Self preservation was their only thought and they could not be expected to moralize upon it."

CHANDLER RETICENT.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug 12.—Secretary Chandler returned [illegible] to-day. To night an Associated Press agent visited him on the Tallapoosa to inquire concerning the truth of the article in to-day's New York Times. The secretary appeared to be considerably irritated. He said: "You may say that I have seen the New York Times and that the navy department has received no such report of the shooting of Henry and cannibalism as the Times gives. Of course you naturally next ask me is the story true? I said that I decline to say. I refuse to say anything further about the matter."

FUNERAL OF LIEUT. LOCKWOOD.

ANNAPOLIS, Aug 12.—The obsequies of Lieut. Lockwood were observed here to-day with all the ceremonies possible during a vacation of the naval academy. The officers, professors and cadets now at the academy were present, with a large congregation of leading citizens. The remains were placed in a grave between those of Conrad W. Terry and Lieut. Collins.

FUNERAL OF WHISTLER.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug 12.—The remains of William Whistler, late member of the Greely exploring party, were interred to-day near Delphi, Carroll county. Governor Porter and staff were present. A number of local military companies participated in the exercises. Whistler was a member of Company F, Ninth infantry. His term of enlistment would have expired to morrow.

AT HENRY'S HOME.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug 12.—Startling interest is excited here by the story of Henry being killed and eaten by the Greely party. Henry's real name was Buck. His sister and friends are in this city, who will push an investigation.

Good Grounds for a New Trial.

New York Star.

A verdict of murder in the first degree had just been brought in.

"Your Honor," said the prisoner's counsel, rising and addressing the court, "I demand a new trial."

"On what ground?" asked the judge.

"On the ground that some members of the jury are incompetent to render a just verdict. Among them are an undertaker, a rope manufacturer, a florist and a dealer in mourning goods."

A new trial was granted.

Mormon Elders Murdered by Masked Men in Tennessee—The Wall Street Bank Failure—The Record of a Day.

Emancipation Day Celebrated.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Aug 12.—The colored people celebrated emancipation day here with great success. There was a long procession followed by public exercises in the court house square where there was a large assemblage of people. After reading the emancipation proclamation an eloquent address was made by James E. O'Hara, member of congress from North Carolina. John R. Lynch of Natchez, in his address to the 5000 people present, white and black, said: "Men once slave holders are now the most valiant [illegible] Hundreds of the best [illegible] men in Mississippi who were slave-holders are now saying by their vote and conduct: We were once blind but now we see, and will help the colored people uphold the banner planted by Abraham Lincoln. We remember yet what they once did. I would teach my children to honor and cherish the names of the men who devoted the best part of their lives to the cause of emancipation. As one of the beneficiaries of this costly struggle, I say to you to-day, the party or ticket must not prevent the honoring of those who fought for us." Lynch was given a reception this evening and balls were held in various parts of the city.

Will Keep the Collection.

Y., Aug 12.—[Special.]—The family of the late Gerrit Smith [illegible] naturalist have declined to transfer to the park commissioners of New York city the great ornithological collection which the deceased gentleman spent his lifetime and $200,000 in making. Four years ago he offered to present it to the city, but the park commissioners, ignorant of its great value, failed to give the offer any attention. When they were subsequently made aware that the collection was the most complete thing of the kind in the world they sent word to the naturalist that they would accept the offer. He had been [illegible] by the delay and refused in very emphatic terms.

The Earthquake.

NEW YORK, Aug 11.—[Special.]—The earthquake yesterday seems to have been a God send to the journals for Monday morning. Nearly all have a page devoted to the subject and their news is very [illegible] The Herald says: It is generally supposed that some extraordinary conditions of the atmosphere, such as unusual barometric pressure, profound calm, high winds, prolonged drouth, extremity of dampness and heat and peculiar disturbances give [illegible] of their approach, but this is by no means certain. ROUGH ON THE SAINTS.

A Party of Masked Men Shoot Down Several Mormon Elders and Entirely Destroy the Church Organization.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Aug 12.—The organization of the Mormon [illegible] in Lewis and Hickman counties in this state about three years ago was broken up [illegible] by the killing of all the elders. A band of masked men [illegible] Mr. Dwight [illegible] in Hickman county gives the following account: [illegible] meeting [illegible] Lewis county Sunday [illegible] when twelve masked men on horseback rode up to the house and ordered a young man [illegible] to surrender. They [illegible] One of the masked men knocked [illegible] his skull. [illegible] fired and [illegible] He was found to have been [illegible] a citizen of Hickman county. He lived at Brush fork on Beaver dam. The masked men then shot and killed two of the Mormon elders. The third elder ran toward the woods from which [illegible] was seen. The elder has not been seen since and it is supposed he was also killed. It has since been ascertained that the masked men before going to [illegible] house stopped at the house of a man named Garrett near [illegible] house and found a Mormon elder there. They left two masked men in charge of this elder. Shooting was heard shortly afterward and [illegible] elder has not been seen since. [illegible] elders hid behind Mrs. [illegible] and in shooting at him Mrs. [illegible] was wounded.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Stocks Close Higher in the Face of the Recent Failure.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—Governments firm for 4½s and easier for 4s. Railways strong and higher. Stocks were quiet but strong. The fact that there were no failures owing to the suspension of the Wall street bank had much to do with the strength of the market. Favorable news from the west concerning crops and the movement of new grain also induced purchases for long account. At the opening a majority of the active shares were higher, but before the first call the improvement was partially lost. Subsequently western orders to buy made their appearance and there was an advance of ⅛ to 2½. Near 3 P. M. a moderate selling movement set in and there was a decline of ⅛ to 1¼. In final transactions there was a fractional recovery. The market was very quiet, sales being the smallest total for some weeks past. The tameness of speculation was the subject of much comment in the face of yesterday's bank failure. Compared with last night closing prices are ⅛ to 1½ higher, except the Jersey Central, which is ¼ lower.

QUOTATIONS.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—Money was easy at 1½@2, closed 1½. Prime mercantile paper 5½@7½. Sterling exchange bankers' bills steady at $4.82½; sterling exchange demand, $4.84.

Petroleum was quiet. United 78½.

Produce exports for the week $6,893,000.

Bonds—3s 100½; 4½s 112⅞; 4s 119½; Pacific 6s of '95, 12[illegible].

THE WALL STREET BANK FAILURE.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—The bank examiners are at work on the Wall Street bank affairs, footing up losses sustained by Dickinson's speculations. President Evans says it is not known whether the statement will be ready to day. It was rumored on the street that the stockholders would not be paid 25 per cent, and that the defalcation is larger than stated. The vice president states that the stockholders will be paid 50 per cent and the depositors in full. Reliable authority says the deficit will not be over $250,000. Rumors on the street, however, put the defalcation at half a million. Brokers who dealt with Dickinson said he was keeping quiet and trying to conceal facts. He was not at his home this morning and the general belief is that he is in Canada.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—The directors of the Wall Street bank have decided to wind it up and a receiver will be appointed this afternoon.

NEW YORK, Aug 12.—A notice was posted at a Wall street bank this morning announcing that all checks of Ogden & Co. will be paid on presentation at the First National bank. The rumor was current at the opening of business that absent Cashier Dickinson had been arrested, but proved unfounded. It is now asserted that Dickinson has been using bank funds for private venture, but he averted suspicion by putting small sums to his credit in a large number of offices. It is thought the latest purchases when closed out will show a profit as the market advanced after they were made.

NEW YORK, August 12.—President Evans of Wall street bank says that additional investigation satisfies him and the directors that the amount of loss will fall short of the capital, and that depositors will be speedily paid in full.

MARSEILLES, Aug 12.—In the twelve hours ending at 3 to day there had been four deaths from cholera here. There is no increase of deaths in the outlying districts. The weather continues intensely hot.

Sahara Becoming a Meadow.

Correspondence N. Y. Sun.

The extraordinary dampness of last winter had a [illegible] effect upon the vegetation of the Sahara, which has [illegible] some remarkably rich and luxuriant. Even in places where ordinarily not a blade of grass is to be seen [illegible] herbs and shrubs [illegible] governor who [illegible] on a journey through the colony, has visited the principal oases of the Algerian desert, has, in a speech delivered on the occasion of the opening of a local exhibition, declared that for this year the [illegible] had ceased to exist. Where formerly nothing but the arid soil was to be seen rich meadows covered the ground, which to make the picture complete lacked unfortunately the cattle to graze upon them, the stock having been almost wholly destroyed by the scarcity of fodder during the preceding dry years. This is certain, that those who have predicted an increased dryness in the climate of Algeria find themselves contradicted by the rains of last winter. A succession of dry years gave rise to this prophecy. Many [illegible] carried along by their imagination saw the desert already advancing toward the seacoast, leaving to the inhabitants the alternative only of quitting the country or dying of thirst. The probability of such a dreadful event was deduced from the fact of the constant decrease of the Algerian forests. In corroboration of their doctrine these theorists pointed to the many ruins of former habitations in Tunis and Tripoli, in places where the desert now reigns supreme and where not a trace of vegetation is to be seen. But they forgot to say that those ancient dwellings were not deserted on account of the advancing desert, but because of the invasions of the nomadic Arabs, the inhabitants having either fled or been killed. There was [illegible] to keep the wells from being filled with dry sand and thus was stopped the very source of vegetation. As to the wells, they still exist, and it would require only a little labor to remove the sand and make them serviceable again. Even [illegible] such destructions took place. The people were driven to despair [illegible] to satisfy the [illegible] tax collectors. They abandoned their houses rather than [illegible] ground to powder. It is to be hoped that now under French dominion [illegible] will no longer take place.

Points About New Tints Now in Favor.

The Senatorship.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 12.—[Special.]—There is a good deal of current talk about the senatorship to be filled by the next legislature. Ex Governor Perkins, Morris M. Estee and ex-Congressman Horace F. Page are mentioned as republican candidates, and the present senator Farley and Judge William T. Wallace as the democratic candidates. In this exhibit the democrats have the decided advantage in point of ability, Judge Wallace being a bigger man in every respect than Perkins, Estee and Davis all put together. It is likely that the republicans will put forth a stronger candidate when the time of election approaches.

Declared a Draw.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 12.—The wrestling match of Græco Roman style between Dubois the French champion and Tom Cannon, which commenced last evening at 9 o'clock at Woodward's gardens, only terminated at 4 this morning. A few minutes after starting in on the third round both men said they were tired and wanted to give it up. The referee refused. They continued wrestling in a feeble sort of way for three hours longer, when the referee at last decided to make it a draw. About 1700 persons remained to the close.

THE PORTLAND EXCURSION.

How the Members of the Party Are Passing the Time at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 12.—[Special.]—The excursion party which left Portland on the night of the 9th reached here this morning, and has taken up headquarters at the Russ house. The trip down was unusually pleasant and there was no sea sickness to speak of. Impromptu concerts and other forms of entertainment made the trip pass quickly and it was almost with regret that the party left the steamer.

Most of the party visited the Mechanics' fair in a body to night. The party will go to Santa Cruz by special car on Saturday, returning Monday. After the Santa Cruz trip they will break up in small parties and will go to various points, returning to Portland on the steamers of the 22d and 27th.

A few members of the party have taken up quarters with friends, but most of them are at the Russ and the Lick house. Following are those registered at these hotels: W. B. Kellogg, C. W. Cornelius, W. [illegible] Eppinger and wife, W. W. Chapman and wife, E. W. Allen, Wiley B. Allen, C. [illegible] Staples, W. C. [illegible], Theodore Barr, F. E. Sharon, Willie Wolf, Herman Wise, E. J. Lowell and wife, W. D. Matthews, T. W. [illegible], Miss [illegible] and child, Miss Tilden, W. W. [illegible], J. Stuart and wife, Mrs. [illegible], Miss M. E. [illegible], A. Welfer, Miss Belle Malarkey, Miss Al[illegible] Davis, Mrs. F. D. [illegible], W. F. West, H. Wolf, Dr. L. Brown, D. O. Sullivan.

Charley Cornelius was much benefited by the trip and is almost well again. He will go with the party to Santa Cruz.

E. W. Allen will spend most of his time at Mechanics' fair picking up points for the home fair.

Colonel Dudley Evans will go to Monterey to morrow and will return in time to take the next steamer for Portland.

[illegible] Macleay is at the Palace, and expects to return to Portland next week.

W. L. Eppinger is here looking up evidence in behalf of the city of Portland for the defense against the claim of Bangs, who is suing for infringement of a patent in relation to electrical appliances in the engine houses. He has already secured important information and on [illegible] he will go to Sacramento and from there to Stockton for further evidences.

STATE DISPATCHES.

Sad Accidents near Salem.

SALEM, Aug 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. H. Savage, living about six miles south of Salem, was thrown from a horse last evening, sustaining injuries from the effects of which she died about midnight. She was discovered lying in the road, after a somewhat lengthened absence from home, on a call at a neighbor's, and never recovered consciousness. She was the daughter of Charles Claggett of this city, and leaves a family of four children.

ENGLAND.

THE KIDNAPPED SHELDON.

LONDON, August 12.—The case of Sheldon, the Englishman alleged to have been kidnapped in Kansas and held for ransom, was brought up in the commons to-day. Arthur Arnold, liberal for Salford, made it the subject of inquiry. The under foreign secretary stated that the latest dispatches from the British minister at Washington, August 6th, brought the intelligence that all efforts made up to that time to discover Sheldon had proved futile. The search, however, would be vigorously prosecuted. Arnold then said that a brother of the missing man had received letters from friends in Kansas which asserted that the authorities are making no efforts to find him. The secretary replied this was contrary to information the government had. He asked to see the letter, and promised to pay every attention to the matter.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 13, 1884.

PROHIBITION THROUGH POLITICAL ACTION.

One feature noticeable above all others in the proceedings of the prohibition convention recently held at Pittsburg was the bitter spite of all the speakers and leaders against the republican party. Now and then there was a little fling at the democratic party, but the burden of song generally was the republican party and the necessity of defeating it. No one of the speakers had the hardihood to prophesy success now to their movement; and that being out of view, the avowed purpose of the organization was to defeat the republican party. A prohibition organ near us takes up the theme and expands it in this way: "There is but one course left for the prohibitionists, that of putting in the field a new party which will, by drawing the best men from the old parties in 1884, compel one of them, presumably the republican, to adopt prohibition in 1888, or out of the republican and democratic parties form a new party to abolish the rum curse."

This is the idlest of all dreams. The idea is that if the republican party be defeated its organization will be abandoned, and its masses, supported by a large section of the present adherents of the democratic party, will go over in a body to the prohibitionists. There could be no greater absurdity. A party as old as the republican is very difficult to break down. One defeat will not do it; nor is it likely that any number of defeats would do it. The democratic party has been beaten steadily for twenty-five years, and is as strong still as ever. Again, if the republican party could be broken down in that way it does not follow that the prohibition party would profit by it to any great extent. Only a limited number of its voters would go to that party. Prohibition never can be made an issue in a national contest. It can gain a footing only in rural communities; whence it follows that the great states in which the great cities are situated will not entertain it as an "issue." Kansas and Iowa, having cities of no magnitude and few large towns, furnish no criterion on this subject for New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio and Illinois.

Only by local effort can prohibition make any progress, and then only in those states which have comparatively little political weight, and which throw very large majorities for one party or the other. Thus, Kansas and Iowa have been enabled to enact prohibitory legislation through the fact that the republican majorities of 60,000 to 80,000 in each state made it possible to pledge the party to prohibition without the consequence of overwhelming defeat, although the republican majority in each has been almost annihilated, and very probably will soon disappear entirely—prohibition falling with them. In Georgia the democratic party has been able, through its enormous majority, to maintain itself while permitting a county prohibitory law; and in Missouri its vast majority has enabled it, without as yet incurring defeat, to enact and maintain the highest license law of any state in the union. In states where parties are almost evenly balanced nothing of this kind can be done. In such states the first effort in the direction of prohibition, as in Ohio last year, will defeat the party which is pledged to it, and leave the liquor traffic without control. The error of the prohibitionist is that he does not consider, and usually refuses to see the conditions of the question before him. But that is the usual fault of the specialist and idealist. The weakness of the prohibitory movement grows out of that mistake so common in moral speculation, but seldom made in physical science—namely, expectation of a result in the absence of its necessary conditions. But the result, without its necessary conditions, remains as impossible in the moral as in the physical world.

H. W.

ANSWERS NOT NECESSARY.

There are great numbers who think it incumbent on them, for defense of religion, to answer Ingersoll. Our table is already loaded with communications on the subject. The notion is a mistake. The religious principle in man rests on immovable foundations. Col. Ingersoll does not suppose he can shake them. He does not desire to. He lectures because it is his vocation. As with other lecturers, it is his way of making money. He knows that people will flock to hear him and will pay him for it. Whatever superficial observers may think, Col. Ingersoll really has no quarrel with man's religious nature, though doubtless many are pleased to hear him set forth doctrines which seem to show them that they haven't any. But his real purpose is to make money, not to stifle the soft whisper of God in man, which, in fact, no matter what the most eloquent speaker may say, or how loudly the most resolved skepticism may applaud, will not be stifled or suppressed. Our good friends who are so concerned about the effect of Ingersoll's lectures on religion, need not fear that man will be argued out of the conviction that the life is more than meat and the body more than raiment. Man feels too deeply the need of reliance on a power outside of and higher than himself. True, the young and thoughtless, to whom life seems a substantial thing and almost infinite, may not feel it; but a time always comes in their lives when they do. As a sense of the shortness of life and of the true proportions of things grows upon them they come to see, if at all inclined to seriousness and reflection, that man, if a being of yesterday and no to-morrow, is the supreme mistake of the universe. Col. Ingersoll may be ingenious, witty and entertaining at the expense of some of the outward forms and dogmas of religion, but the citadel of human faith no storming party, no matter how daring its leader, will ever be able to carry.

The special from the Sun, which purports to give an account of Mr. Blaine's psychological condition, with his views upon the political situation, would be more intelligible were it not so apparently at variance with probabilities, not to say facts. Since Garfield's death Blaine certainly has not sought seclusion and retirement. True, he withdrew from office, but he has been as assiduous as ever in keeping himself before the country. His speeches and writings during the last three years have not appeared to be those of a despondent man, much less of a hopeless hypochondriac. It would require, too, a large measure of gullibility to believe that he didn't seek or want the nomination for the presidency, believing it impossible to succeed in the election. While it is true that he made no direct effort to secure delegates, it was apparent to all that he was keeping himself before the public in a studied manner, so as to concentrate attention upon himself. In other words, he sought the nomination by the most adroit and effective of all methods, and it is known by all who have been near him that he has entertained the fullest belief, ever since the democrats in congress developed their policy of last winter, that the republicans would elect their candidate no matter who he might be. Mr. Blaine no doubt was deeply affected by President Garfield's death; but when it is stated that the event threw him into an incurable melancholy, from the effect of which he has lost all interest in politics and all hope of further success, it must be said that his course and conduct do not sustain the assumption.

A judge has been found in Iowa to drive the traditional coach and six through the new prohibitory law only thirty days after it came into operation. Judge Hayes holds that justices of the peace have no jurisdiction to try, determine or pass judgment upon cases under this law other than to hold a preliminary trial and bind defendants over to the district court. The decision is based upon an opinion that the penalties of the new law exceed the jurisdiction of justices. By this decision all liquor cases commenced at Muscatine under the new law are dismissed. The question is one of great importance and will be appealed to the supreme court.

THE DAIRY BUSINESS.

Although the lands in the Willamette valley are yielding this year a very large crop of wheat, it is becoming more and more evident that the farmers cannot, with profit, continue to rely upon this staple. It is doubtful if the price of wheat remains as high as it has been in the past. While the area of production has been extending in the United States, it has also been vastly enlarged in the provinces north of us—in India and in other parts of the world—and this country will find it more difficult to secure a profitable foreign market for its surplus. But with the favorable conditions of the past the farmers of the Willamette valley have not made much money out of wheat. If, indeed, they have held their own. Their land has increased a little in value within ten years, but not more than enough on the whole to make their pecuniary situation any better than it was then. Some of them have helped to hold the balance even by raising stock in the hills back of their farms, but this resource is enjoyed by only a few, and even those cannot compete with the ranchers of eastern Oregon, with the interest upon the mortgages with which many of their farms are encumbered running up against them, it is only a question of time when many of them will reach the end of their tether, unless some change of plan is made. Already some have been obliged to yield their position in the valley and are seek new fields of cheaper land east of the Cascades, or in the hills towards the coast.

It is the opinion of intelligent observers of what is now taking place in the valley that a general change of plan must be made, or the farmers will go from bad to worse. It is pretty clearly settled that there is no money in the production of wheat at present prices, or at any price that is likely to be obtained in the future. The farmers should lose no time in seeking out the best available method for saving themselves from further loss, and increasing their income in the future. What turn they should take is the important question for them to consider. We write this not to alarm any one, nor to discourage the wheat growers, but to impress upon the latter the necessity of acting before they are further embarrassed by debt. There is no doubt that the valley is finely adapted to dairying and fruit raising. Fairly good butter has brought thirty cents a pound in this city all summer, and last winter it brought twice that amount. There is a large and increasing market for butter in the mining region east of us. In addition to the supply obtained from the Deer Lodge valley the city of Butte, Montana imported from the Mississippi valley in 1883 about 200,000 pounds of butter. This is only one of the places now accessible as a market for the product of Oregon, and with the opening of the Short Line and the increase of mining in Idaho the market will become larger every year. There is one advantage this valley possesses as a dairy country in the fact that the business can be almost as cheaply and as well conducted in the winter months when the product commands the highest price. But in order to make the business profitable, and therefore attractive, it must be undertaken with intelligence and economy. It is not profitable to make poor butter, and good butter cannot be made without the proper appliances nor without skill. It is a matter which requires the most careful, even a scientific method, and this is not a natural gift in every farmer or farmer's wife. The various journals devoted to this subject afford much valuable direction, which farmers acting separately may wisely follow. But in many places the most profitable plan would doubtless be for the farmers to combine and establish butter factories where skilled help would be employed, and the labor and expense of fitting up and maintaining the improved mechanical arrangements would be saved. If a portion of the large farms were devoted to this use and other portions to apple orchards these industries would doubtless yield more revenue and exhaust the land less than the present system. The apples that could not be sent to market would make the best kind of food for cows or for the hogs that would be required to consume the milk. These suggestions are offered with the desire to aid the farmers in the struggle for existence, and with the belief that they point toward the best available method of relief from the present distress and a more profitable and satisfactory career in the future.

The fourth annual meeting of the National Civil Service Reform Association was held at Newport, R. I., August 6. George Wm. Curtis was one of the speakers, and earnestly and properly commended the efforts of President Arthur in favor of civil service reform. He fitly characterized the Arthur administration as "tranquil and conservative." But Mr. Curtis abandoned his subject and truth at the same time, when he said that "office holders and the power of patronage largely controlled the selection of delegates to the recent republican national convention." In his insane seeking to make capital against Mr. Blaine, Mr. Curtis consented to falsify in a fashion most patent to tens of thousands who personally know that the slight office-holding influence which manifested itself in the Chicago convention was almost wholly antagonistic to Mr. Blaine.

The peacemaker and the innocent bystander have no show at all at present in Kentucky. Two highly connected and respectable residents of Morehead, a blue grass town, indulged in a little shooting match lately. They were neither of them seriously injured, but Solomon Bradley, who interfered to stop the fusilade, was killed instantly, and Ed. Simmerman, John Martin and Allen Sutton, bystanders, were all seriously wounded, Simmerman fatally. Kentucky marksmen should be taught to shoot the right fellow before attempting to regulate the tariff on other people's productions.

Broadway in New York, from the Battery to Union square, is to be encumbered at last by a surface horse railway. The right of way was granted by the New York council a few days ago, and except as it may have privately compensated the aldermen, the fortunate company will not pay a dollar for its great privilege. Four years ago August Belmont offered the city $1,000,000 cash for the franchise that has now been given away.

Why shouldn't we be the happiest nation in the world? Members of each party, republican, democratic, anti-monopoly, greenback and prohibition, cherish a certainty that its ticket is going to win.

WHAT SOME PAPERS SAY.

The Star never enjoyed such a calm and restful existence in the heat and turmoil of any previous political campaign.—New York Star (Dem).

If General Butler runs for president on the labor and anti-monopoly nominations he cannot be elected, perhaps; but most assuredly neither can Cleveland.—Boston Pilot (Dem).

It is a singular fact that every presidential candidate whose name was James has been elected in this country. This may be noted by the Grovers, Benjamins, etc.—Cleveland Herald.

Iowa has reached that stage in moral advancement and political virtue where a stranger can call for almost anything besides whisky and get whisky.—Milwaukee Evening Sentinel.

It may be true that Cleveland is a man of destiny. History shows pretty conclusively that men of destiny sooner or later get most beautifully and everlastingly thrashed.—Philadelphia Press.

Detroit Post: The work of making a great man of Grover Cleveland seems to halt because the workingmen of the country have struck against the job.

Brooklyn Eagle (dem.): Our valuable contemporary the Sun is convinced that General Butler will run for the presidency. We are sorry to hear it. General Butler is a democrat. He can not, therefore, desire the election of Mr. Blaine. And yet the only effect of his running would be to improve Blaine's chances.

Kansas City Journal: We find no fault because Mr. Cleveland did not enter the Union army. All could not go, but while remaining at home Mr. Cleveland did nothing to aid the Union cause. For the latter reason he is not entitled to the support of the men who were loyal to their country in its hour of peril.

The Cleveland organs are drawing the line between a man's private life and his public acts. Which reminds us of the story of a bishop who reproved a clergyman for swearing. "It is the man, and not the priest, who swears," was the reply. "But," said the bishop, "when the devil gets the man, what will become of the priest?"—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Hay Fever. I have suffered for the last ten years from Hay Fever. I desire to testify in favor of Ely's Cream Balm. My short use of it has demonstrated its efficacy. J. Maidhoff, 401 Broadway, N. Y.

THE NEW YORK "SUN."

A Vitriolic Arraignment of the "Reform" Governor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The Sun has opened fire on the democratic candidate in a manner that leaves no room for doubting where it proposes to be found in this campaign. In its issue of to-day there are no less than five editorials in which Governor Cleveland is attacked under the caption, "Unavailable Availability." It is shown how Cleveland was selected by his partisans, not for intellectual force, but because of his supposed availability—that he would get the most votes. The Sun says:

> Less than a month has passed since this available nomination was made, and how is it quoted now? Has availability gone up or down in that time? What has the democratic party gained by lowering its standard of public merit, and by sacrificing its most splendid issues to a promoted accident? It has gained, or hopes it has, some small quantity of votes—the votes of republicans.
> It has gained, also, the enmity of great numbers of laboring men who have hitherto been willing to support it. It is safe to estimate that for every dissatisfied republican whom the dem-republicanism of the democratic candidate has won over it has turned two democrats away disgusted. This is the fruit of putting up a candidate whose course, however sincere may have been the motive that prompted it, has only secured republican votes by alienating democrats.

And here the Sun takes advantage of the opportunity to hold the democratic candidate up to the scrutinizing gaze of the country, and invite a close inspection of his social character when it says:

> And now, to make this brilliant triumph of availability still more resplendent, the democratic candidate must go through the campaign with the burden of an ill scandal weighing him down. It is a wretched business. Surely, if mediocrity was to be honored and exalted by the democrats, there was mediocrity enough to be found against which, in private life at least, no shameful accusation would be brought, and in whose defense no painful confession would have to be made. But to public abilities of the highest order, to private lives without a blemish, the democrats preferred availability. The result has been that already there is doubt where there should have been assured confidence, and the fatal seeds of division and disaster may be already springing up in fields where victory was looked for.

In another article the Sun says:

> The private life of a candidate for president is a proper subject of examination. No matter if he displays honesty in financial affairs; no matter indeed if he exhibits every political virtue and all possible administrative talents, yet we say that if his mode of life is beastly, if he is given to coarse intrigues and purchased amours, if he is, in short, not a man but an animal, then we don't want him for president of the United States. We do not believe the American people will knowingly elect to the presidency a coarse debauchee who would bring his harlots to Washington and hire lodgings for their convenience in the White House. The private life of a candidate for the presidency is a matter of public concern, and we trust that Mr. Cleveland will prove able to clear himself of every imputation of this sort.

This reference to "hiring apartments * * convenient to the White House" has more meaning than would appear on the surface, and the editor of the Sun, if pressed for an explanation, could undoubtedly enlarge upon the theme by detailing certain transactions in Albany last winter which were matters of common notoriety in political circles, and in which the governor is alleged to have figured as one of the two parties most conspicuously interested. The Sun, however, contents itself with this simple hint of what may in time become public gossip, and in another article proceeds to show how the nomination of Cleveland was made with the facts of this Buffalo scandal fully familiar to many of the delegates who were most prominent in urging his name. He says:

> He was not chosen by the convention as the candidate for president in utter ignorance of the risk involved. It was, nevertheless, true that the democratic party at large, the great body of democratic voters throughout the land, and the newspaper press opposed to Mr. Blaine and to continued republican rule, remained in absolute ignorance of the existence of these charges until weeks after the nomination of the machine candidate. The same thing cannot be said of the information furnished to the independent republicans who adopted Gov. Cleveland as their candidate at the recent conference in this city, and who declared in their address to the country that "the paramount issue of the presidential election of this year is moral rather than political."

The Sun proceeds to show that before the independent conference met, before the address read by George William Curtis was prepared, Mr. Curtis knew, and the other leaders in this movement knew, that Grover Cleveland had been branded as a moral leper. Here are the names of some of the men who informed Mr. Curtis of the facts, who stand responsible for the charges, and who implored Mr. Curtis to look at the evidence in their possession before he indorsed Grover Cleveland. The Rev. Dr. Mitchell, First Presbyterian church, Buffalo; the Rev. Dr. Gordon, First Baptist church Buffalo; the Rev. Dr. Hall, Hudson Street Baptist church, Buffalo; the Rev. Dr. Green, Lafayette Street Baptist church, Buffalo; the Rev. Dr. Hubbell, North Presbyterian church, Buffalo; the Rev. Mr. Chivers, Prospect Avenue Methodist church, Buffalo; the Rev. H. G. Lord, West Side Presbyterian church, Buffalo.

"The only ground," says the Sun, "left for independent republicans who desire to support Mr. Cleveland is indicated by the Evening Post, which, in reviewing the Cleveland scandals, declares, in effect, that the paramount issue of the election is political, not moral." Diverging from the discussion of the Buffalo scandal, the Sun pays its respects to Mr. Carl Schurz, saying: "When we consider the appearance of Mr. Carl Schurz as the advocate of a democratic candidate for president we are amazed at the immensity of his impudence. In all the records of human hypocrisy and human impudence there is nothing to be compared with this exploit of Hayes' secretary of the interior."

Lincoln, Grant, Hayes and Cleveland.

New York Tribune.

"He has had no experience in national affairs," is one of the strong arguments against Governor Cleveland. Well, how much experience did Abraham Lincoln have in national affairs before he was elected? How much did General Grant have? How much did Mr. Hayes or President Arthur have?—New York Evening Post.

Well, Abraham Lincoln had served in congress, had been recognized as one of the foremost lawyers in his state, had been pitted by the republicans against the most conspicuous democratic leader then in the nation, in a senatorial contest fought out before the people with such marvelous ability that the republicans afterward used those very speeches of Mr. Lincoln with Mr. Douglas' replies as their best campaign document, and had delivered a speech in the Cooper institute which had impressed the whole east with the fact that here was a man fit to rank with their foremost statesmen. Do you think Grover Cleveland's record just the same? General Grant had been tried by the most arduous military and civil tests through four years of war; through the critical period which followed had been the intimate counselor of the men who had shaped the whole reconstruction policy of the government, and had been secretary of war. The Post no doubt thinks Grover Cleveland just as good. Mr. Hayes had served three terms in congress, had been three times chosen governor of his state, each time selected to lead a forlorn hope, each time fighting out the campaign before the people in speeches of recognized ability, and at least once conspicuously leading the contest for the whole country on the question of national honesty in finance. The Post thinks Grover Cleveland's record just as good as that. President Arthur was not, and was not thought of as a republican candidate for the presidency when he was placed on the ticket with Garfield; but when he did become a candidate he had three years of conspicuous and faithful experience in the office to recommend him. Does the Post think Grover Cleveland's record just as good as that?

Profligate Lords.

Providence Journal.

Americans are accustomed to speak with proper indignation at the scandalous stories of the private lives of some of the hereditary legislators of England, but the profligate lords are not elected by the votes of the people to positions of honor and responsibility, and it can be conceived what would be the effect of such an admission as that made by the friends of Governor Cleveland on the political fortunes of Disraeli, Gladstone, Bright or any prominent leader of a party or representative of the nation for the past half century.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

CORNER FOURTH AND A STREETS, PORTLAND, OR., AUG. 8th, 1884.

I [illegible] acknowledge that A. S. Moore, of Vancouver Mills, Vancouver, W. T., sold me ten barrels of flour [illegible] for the [illegible] "C" petrol" in [illegible] Salem [illegible] sacks. Some of it I have sold which has been returned to me.

Signed, M. WERTHEIMER.

Referring to the above letter, and other similar cases which have come to our knowledge, showing that A. S. Moore of Vancouver, W. T., has been putting his flour into our sacks and so selling the flour with malicious intent, and to the injury, we hereby warn the public and the trade generally to see that they get the respective brands of flour from the proper agents. Steps have been taken to prosecute all such infringements to the full extent of the law.

AN ANSWER.

ON THE REQUEST OF A. S. MOORE, IN ORder to reply to a certain notice published in the Oregonian, I will respectfully say to the public that I did not buy the said ten barrels of flour of Mr. Moore as Capital Mill flour, but as Vancouver Mill flour, in second-handed sacks; nor have I sold it as Capital Mill flour. Mr. Moore told me at the time I bought the flour of him that it was Vancouver City Mill flour. I do not consider that Mr. Moore in anywise intended to infringe upon the rights of the Capital Mill Co. or to deceive me or the public. M. WERTHEIMER.

Portland, Or., August 11, 1884.

In answer to the card published in the Oregonian by the agents of the Salem Flouring Mills Co. and the City of Salem Co., I have only to say that as a matter of economy I have for years bought and used second-hand flour sacks of all brands, but in selling flour packed in such sacks I have always notified purchasers that the flour was Vancouver City Mills flour in second hand sacks.

CITY.

CLAIMS OF AN HEIR TO AN ESTATE [illegible]—[illegible] has received a letter from Jeremiah [illegible], who makes a claim of kinship with Aaron [illegible], an old man who died in this city about a [illegible] possessed of considerable property [illegible] lives at Mohawk [illegible] gives an extended history of the [illegible] which goes far toward verifying his identity as an actual heir. He says that Aaron Yarnell died childless and a bachelor, and neither [illegible] nor sisters. That his [illegible] whose son Jeremiah is the present claimant. He also gives the whereabouts of two of his [illegible] and one sister, all of whom are in the east. [illegible] Consequently he claims [illegible] of his deceased cousin's estate. This, however, [illegible] unfortunate for him. [illegible] Aaron Yarnell's death he was very feeble in mind and body, and for some time has been [illegible] burden, so it is claimed, upon a neighbor, [illegible] W. Roork. However, it created a [illegible] Yarnell died that all his property [illegible] Roork. [illegible] taken possession. [illegible] the said Roork was [illegible] by his neighbors upon the matter, [illegible] exhibiting bills of sale and warranty [illegible] purporting to be signed by Yarnell for the property. Some consideration was [illegible] documents, but after Yarnell's death there was [illegible] claimed by Roork. [illegible] people of Powell's valley [illegible] these things [illegible] were [illegible] over what they deemed an unfair transaction, and after the usual amount of gossip which [illegible] would be sure to cause, the matter was laid before District Attorney Caples and the grand jury for Multnomah county. [illegible] investigated the affair and [illegible] special report to the [illegible] all the circumstances that they had [illegible] indicting J. W. Roork for fraud and [illegible] that all the property [illegible] be forfeited to the state [illegible] on behalf of the state [illegible] to recover said property. This suit was [illegible] not long after J. W. Roork died. He had [illegible] all his property [illegible] Yarnell to his son. The estate [illegible] intends to fight the matter in [illegible] property at issue is becoming quite valuable [illegible] county has appointed an administrator of [illegible] T. Williams of Bow [illegible] an heir has appeared it is probable the state [illegible] the suit over to him. As the matter now [illegible] the Yarnell heirs and young Roork are upon [illegible] same footing. Each has inherited a lawsuit [illegible] the lawyers will get [illegible] the estate before the suit is ended.

COUNTERFEITER SENTENCED TO ONE YEAR'S [illegible]—William Rodgers, the leader [illegible] of counterfeiters recently arrested by the [illegible] police, was yesterday arraigned in the [illegible] circuit court and permitted to plead guilty, [illegible] attorney Watson made a statement [illegible] concerning the counterfeiters, the thing [illegible] at the [illegible] their capture and imprisonment within a few [illegible] from the time they first entered upon the [illegible] business. Rodgers' own story [illegible] He is a man about [illegible] years [illegible] and an [illegible] by trade and not long since [illegible] foundry in Chicago. He has several letters [illegible] recommendation which [illegible] the reputation [illegible] a competent workman. He states that he came to this country under the [illegible] there was a great demand for men [illegible] being able to obtain work [illegible] having to care [illegible] young Wolf—another of the gang—[illegible] brought with him [illegible] desperation. He thought he [illegible] to get out of the country [illegible] would be any the wiser. Still he [illegible] the work and did not quit [illegible] other men captured with him, and had been [illegible] to the crime by [illegible] Wolf [illegible] nothing to do with the counterfeiting [illegible] was [illegible] under the impression [illegible] good. [illegible] appearance were much in his favor [illegible] imposed the lightest penalty—one year [illegible]

NEW QUARTERS FOR THE Y. M. C. A.—Last winter [illegible] fully demonstrated the fact that the rooms [illegible] occupied by the Young Men's Christian Association [illegible] wholly inadequate to the requirements [illegible] was experienced in giving the educational [illegible] for the room required, and several branches of [illegible] had to be omitted altogether. For a time [illegible] committee consisting of Messrs. [illegible] F. Steven and William Wadhams, have been [illegible] in searching for suitable quarters. [illegible] such a story to the [illegible] was entertained for a time [illegible] yesterday the upper part of [illegible] corner of First and [illegible] term of years. This will [illegible] able for the use of [illegible] accommodation in the new building [illegible] reading rooms, magazines [illegible] for parlor or chapel seating [illegible] rooms, kitchen and bathrooms [illegible] will be fitted up with the most approved [illegible] dressing rooms [illegible] portable so that the hall can be used for meetings [illegible] This is another move in the right [illegible] The association is doing a large amount [illegible] practical Christian work, and with increased facilities will do still more.

SELLING LIQUOR TO INDIANS.—Six men were arraigned in the United States circuit court [illegible] Judge Deady yesterday upon a charge of selling [illegible] to Indians, and all of them either [illegible] were convicted and punished. [illegible] offender was Chris Scares. He had [illegible] Benton county who pleaded not guilty, but [illegible] convicted in very short order. His [illegible] and his already having served a term in the [illegible] penitentiary for burglary was not [illegible] sentence and he was sent back to his old quarters [illegible] for one year. John Nettleton and Eddie B. [illegible] of Newport and Albert Ray [illegible] together with Hubbard Johns [illegible] in some other part of the state, pleaded guilty [illegible] were fined $10 each, which they [illegible] all [illegible] pending a short term in the county jail.

EXERCISES.—Ben Hatch, the long legged amateur cyclist, is very anxious to ride a race with Fred F. Merrill, mile heats, two best in three, and give a handicap of fifty feet. Some time since Merrill [illegible] him 100 feet, but that was before Hatch got [illegible] new 58 inch wheel. It is thought that Warren, [illegible] Astoria champion, will be up in a few days [illegible] three handed race can be arranged. The [illegible] who went down to North beach a few [illegible] ago, report fine exercise, which he wound at [illegible] backs they fairly flew, but on the return trip [illegible] retarded speed. The beach [illegible] not make a first class track, as the sand is just soft enough to [illegible] the tire sink sufficiently to make considerable friction.

DECISIONS IN THE STATE CIRCUIT COURT.—[illegible] Judge Stearns has twice announced [illegible] that he would adjourn the state circuit court [illegible] the remainder of the term, the press of business [illegible] been such that he has been unable to do so. [illegible] to-day will wind up matters [illegible] This morning he will announce his decisions in the following cases: [illegible] Piquet et al., motion of defendants Dement and [illegible] strike out the answer of Piquet, and [illegible] Chong Yow vs. Hop Chong, [illegible] out parts of complaints. Hop Chong [illegible] Chong Yow, demurrer to complaint. [illegible] vs. Multnomah railway company, [illegible] complaint.

YOUNG SHELL WINS.—The four oared race [illegible] last evening between two crews from the Willamette Rowing Club was won by the shell Willamette [illegible] Higgins, Epling and Martin as the crew. [illegible] course was from [illegible] to and [illegible] Pine street, [illegible] The [illegible] the race [illegible] was won [illegible] kept very close together [illegible] the course. The Willamette [illegible] the defeated crew rowed in a paper shell.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICERS ELECTED.—At a meeting of the Sunday school board of the Taylor Street M. E. church Monday evening the following were elected to fill vacancies: [illegible] superintendent; [illegible] F. Caples, [illegible] Slater, assistant superintendent; W. R. R. [illegible] secretary; J. W. [illegible] librarian; Mrs. M. [illegible] organist. The election was made necessary by the resignation of officers [illegible] to the newly formed Grace church.

[illegible] PROHIBITED.—[illegible] issued by the Northern [illegible] of the employees [illegible] company [illegible] or vulgar language [illegible] employed by the company [illegible] passengers with the public [illegible]

OVERLAND PASSENGERS.—[illegible] arrive in Portland to-day [illegible] Frost [illegible] E. Rowland, W. C. [illegible] Bernold and wife, H. L. Bryan, [illegible] and family, Mrs. [illegible] Wheeler, W. C. Liberty.

COL. INGERSOLL'S ROUTE.—Col. Ingersoll will lecture at the Mechanics Pavilion to-night [illegible] Thursday, Oregon City Friday, Portland Saturday, Forest Grove Monday the 18th, Corvallis [illegible] the 19th, Astoria Tuesday the [illegible] and from [illegible] he will visit the Sound and Victoria.

HOW TO MAKE A TWENTY-FOUR HOUR WATCH.—When the eastern railroad companies advanced the idea of twenty-four hour time pieces, thus abandoning A. M. and P. M. from time cards, everyone said that even should the public incline to accept the innovation it could never be adopted, because of the expense. Such a change would require duplicates of every time piece in the country and render [illegible] locks and watches in the hands of dealers almost worthless. But this difficulty has been overcome, and it is so simple that the wonder is every [illegible] instantly [illegible] [illegible]

ARRIVALS.—The following are the arrivals at [illegible] the Esmond [illegible] Miss [illegible] Thompson, Miss [illegible], Mrs. [illegible] child, [illegible] H. Walker [illegible] Miss Alice B. YAQUINA BAY.

On the last trip to Yaquina bay the [illegible] carried [illegible] passengers and about 500 tons of freight. The run down the coast was leisurely [illegible] to arrive at the bar at high tide on Tuesday. [illegible] drifted past the entrance to the [illegible] when the fog cleared she was a [illegible] south. There she anchored until Captain Hallwell [illegible] at time of the [illegible] was [illegible] to allow the Queen to [illegible] New York before [illegible] only from five [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] Queen arrived [illegible] the bar was [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] favorite [illegible] the valley and all [illegible] the [illegible] Newport is the only [illegible] activity [illegible] eastern Oregon and several of the eastern [illegible] states [illegible] the [illegible] bay [illegible] Beaches [illegible] winter [illegible] the [illegible] Lieutenant Alden, in his first survey of the coast, found [illegible] north of Cape bay [illegible] fifty miles [illegible] some talk in the past of examining this bank [illegible] along the coast at Yaquina and to make other explorations for the [illegible] valuable fisheries [illegible] the subject [illegible] Yaquina [illegible] Captain Wyman [illegible] this [illegible] for a revival [illegible] has [illegible] thus far [illegible]

Apart from the various opportunities for business the Yaquina bay will have strong attractions as a summer resort as soon as the railroad is completed. The fishing is not surpassed either in the quality and variety or in the abundance of [illegible] anywhere along the Oregon coast. In Beaver creek, seven miles south of the bay, there is excellent [illegible] fishing, and at the [illegible] bay and for a [illegible] distance on either side the rock oysters [illegible] collected abound. These are very [illegible] from which they mussel. They are [illegible] are taken at low tide by breaking the rock with a pick-axe or hammer. They have a large [illegible] than oysters, more tender and more highly flavored. They are [illegible] esteemed a greater delicacy [illegible] south to the Sea [illegible] for fifteen [illegible] Fairweather light are not surpassed in any coast. In the bay the water is tempered a little so as to admit of comfortable bathing. On the south shore of the bay there is a luxuriant growth of firs which add a charm to the view like that of the hills around Portland [illegible] waving boughs which is one of the most permanently fascinating features of this Oregon scenery.

There is already considerable travel and traffic on the bay. The Kate and Anna was discharging a cargo [illegible] brought up from Alsea [illegible] and the Cleveland and [illegible] with traffic while the Mary Hall [illegible] E. A. [illegible] little fleet [illegible] City waiting for the government [illegible] the part of the upper cargo consisted of supplies [illegible] From the south side of the entrance to the bay [illegible] south [illegible] the [illegible] north.

The Oregon Pacific railroad [illegible] bay that no reference to it can be complete without a full description of the railroad. Indeed congress in granting appropriations for the improvement of the entrance to the [illegible] has always considered the completion of the [illegible] between the Willamette valley [illegible] Yaquina bay as the strongest argument for their liberality—and in [illegible] After passing [illegible] Newport the bay [illegible] a street of water [illegible] three miles [illegible] for the future [illegible] in safety [illegible]

About three [illegible] of Newport [illegible] It is here on the east [illegible] Oregon Pacific [illegible] Yaquina [illegible] Yaquina City [illegible]

All along the bay the railroad track [illegible] the constructing [illegible] rip-rap [illegible] The track has been [illegible] and [illegible] slough [illegible] which have had to be blasted away [illegible] bed of hundreds of [illegible] excellent gravel from which [illegible] the western portion of the line will be ballasted.

The railroad is now complete [illegible] miles from Yaquina. This little town will be a place of considerable importance, as the nearest point on the railroad to the Siletz [illegible] tract is now occupied as an Indian reservation [illegible] held for a handful of Indians [illegible] enough to provide homes for thousands of [illegible] citizens.

Still following the Yaquina river up about three miles above Toledo the quarry is reached [illegible] all the rock used on the government works at the breakwater is obtained. The quarry [illegible] position of the river [illegible] shows a very [illegible] building stone which will make the [illegible] important in [illegible] the building operations of the near future.

All along the Yaquina river as far as Elk City the railroad [illegible] the [illegible] its source. The grade is [illegible] completed. For two or three miles below Elk City [illegible] heavy, there being a [illegible] cuts in the steep slopes overhanging the river. At about [illegible] twenty four miles from Yaquina there are yet many gangs of grade workers to be seen [illegible] they are rapidly leaving [illegible] their eastward journey. From Elk City to the head of tide [illegible] Yaquina is about five miles, and as far the grade is nearly completed. Just below the [illegible] which marks the extreme point to which the tide ebbs and flows is the western end of tunnel No. [illegible] This is [illegible] feet long, and is driven through a steep hill [illegible] It is timbered [illegible] throughout its entire length and [illegible] The material through which all the tunnels [illegible] on the line are built is soft stones, and the same precaution is taken in all of timbering throughout.

After passing through tunnel No. 1 the line [illegible] out into the valley of the Yaquina proper. This [illegible] is not so contracted and rough as the [illegible] western [illegible] portion [illegible] Here the work is in full progress [illegible] that between [illegible] and 1,500 men [illegible] are [illegible] of the graders. A [illegible] with [illegible] trains [illegible] rapidly removing the dirt.

The stage road passes in full sight of the clearing for the railroad all the way up the Yaquina valley until the last crossing of the river just before the long summit hill forming the watershed between the Yaquina and the Mary's rivers. In this [illegible] nearly twenty [illegible] the plainest [illegible] of country on the whole [illegible] distance between Yaquina and Corvallis and will be [illegible] covered by the large force at work. [illegible] heavy [illegible] We understand that [illegible] and large quantities are being delivered at the various bridge sites.

When the railroad [illegible] wagon road part company at the top of the summit hill [illegible] railroad [illegible] passes first through a short tunnel [illegible] heavy [illegible] varying from thirty to [illegible] feet in height [illegible] until the large trestle called Alder [illegible] deep [illegible] tunnel No. [illegible] This trestle is 1[illegible] feet high and about [illegible] feet long [illegible] degree curves [illegible] length of the line [illegible] hesitation that the original [illegible] these ravines and gulches [illegible] piece of country than this [illegible] heaped together masses of hills and waters [illegible] forming the watershed between the two rivers, and [illegible] to traverse. But [illegible] work has been [illegible] completion of this five miles [illegible] summit [illegible] tunnels [illegible] fifty [illegible] When the crossing of the [illegible] into the Mary's river valley has been made [illegible] the work [illegible] Corvallis on a descending grade [illegible] Mary's river is crossed from one side to the other several times [illegible] best country [illegible] these bridges are all prepared and [illegible] rapidly getting them to the bridge sites ready for erection. We omitted to mention that one of the many difficulties of crossing the summit was found in the large bodies of splendid timber there, which mysteriously escaped the ravages of the great fires which swept down the timber of the hillsides of the Yaquina valley. In this timber the Oregon Pacific company has had two sawmills at work for many months past, and it is here that all the bridge and trestle timber for the central ten or twelve miles, including the large trestles and the tunnel timbers, have been sawed.

These mills are now at work on ties, huge piles of which are stacked at various points along the line awaiting the approach of the track layers. The timber [illegible] for the western end comes from the sloughs running into Yaquina bay at various points. A part is transported either by scows to the head of tide or [illegible] taken on by the construction trains, or else loaded on the cars on the bay itself where the line in several places crosses in the neighborhood of the mills.

For some weeks past the Oregon Pacific railroad has had a [illegible] force at work [illegible] wherever any heavy work was likely to delay the main body of [illegible] [illegible] few miles of easy work to remove the contractors [illegible] with the work finished in ample time for the grading. Then there [illegible] the bridges, surfacing and finishing the fifteen miles [illegible] two years [illegible]

[illegible] review of the whole seventy [illegible] Yaquina and Corvallis there [illegible] work done [illegible] the road [illegible] at [illegible] Williams [illegible]

SILK WORMS AT WORK.

Hundreds of Thousands of Them Spinning Silk Under One Roof—What Miss Nellie Rossiter has Accomplished—Experiments to Obtain New Shades in Cocoons.

Philadelphia Times.

Miss Nellie Lincoln Rossiter, the "young silk culturist," of world-wide fame, is now conducting operations on a more extensive scale than ever. The first of this season's crop of silk worms is at its height. A visit to Miss Rossiter's residence, 6054 Vine street, West Philadelphia, will reveal to the inquirer the complete process of silk culture, from cocoon back to cocoon again. The two parlors on the first floor of the house are occupied by Miss Rossiter's unique and valuable collection. The silk stock farm is spread throughout the second and third stories of the house, which is so crowded with frames, trays and mulberry branches that the human occupants of the buildings are pressed for living room. Every one of the family—from the grandfather, aged 84, to the little brother, aged 7—is actively employed in the work, all being devoted assistants to Miss Nellie, the business woman.

SILK WORMS AT WORK.

The worms beneath this one roof number hundreds of thousands, and all are in a perfectly healthy condition. They are about the size of an ordinary caterpillar, but are smooth and in color vary from gray to cream-white. The feet are white, yellow, orange, pink, sage-green or pale brown, and from this tint can be told the color of the cocoon that each worm will make. The worms creep thickly over the mulberry branches, eating greedily or preparing to spin. Cocoons of every shade, just begun or just completed, are scattered thick everywhere; among the leaves, in bundles of straw prepared for them or in bunches of cut paper. The frames are kept neat by outspread sheets of white musquito netting, and the floors are sprinkled with water, so that everything about the worms is clean.

Besides the worms and scattered cocoons, there are moths to be seen. The silk worm moth is smooth and of a uniform pearly tint. The male moth is smaller than the female and may be known by his making a slight buzzing noise, while the female is always silent. The eggs of the silk worm are about the size of a pin's head and vary in color from yellow to brown. In a third-story back room, spread out upon newspapers, are perhaps several bushels of this year's cocoons, all large and beautifully colored, principally snow-white, cream-white, sage-green, lemon-yellow and golden-yellow. Seven natural shades have been observed in cocoons, including a pale pink and a fawn-brown.

NEW EXPERIMENTS.

Miss Rossiter has made several interesting experiments this season, which, if successful, will give her fame as an innovator as well as a pioneer in silk culture. One of these is the rearing of a new variety of silk worms known as "Black Thibets," recently imported from India, and which may be distinguished from ordinary silk worms by dark gray stripes upon the body. Another is the crossing of different color producing worms, with the view of obtaining new shades in cocoons. A deeper yellow and green have already been produced.

Miss Rossiter also believes that the day is not far distant when families can manufacture their own silk from the cocoon to the completed fabric. Accordingly she is experimenting in dying the reeled thread, in spinning it, and in weaving dress patterns. Already she has added to her stock of implements a larger reel for unwinding the silk from the cocoons, a spinning wheel and a hand loom, said to be capable of giving 150 distinct effects to a woven surface. Miss Nellie has secured the co-operation of Mr. John Haig, an English silk weaver residing in Haddington, who has made her the loom, of his own invention, and is teaching her how to manage it.

WHAT MISS ROSSITER HAS DONE.

To Miss Nellie Lincoln Rossiter, more than any other person living, the United States owe the revived interest in silk culture. This girl of 17 has by her own enterprise and intelligence made Philadelphia the headquarters of the industry; yet, almost as might be expected, her name is known anywhere and everywhere except in Philadelphia. Her stock of silk worms is considered the finest in the country and she controls the egg market. Her pamphlet on silk culture, which has reached five editions and which is issued at the rate of 8000 copies a year, is regarded as the one authority on the subject.

Miss Rossiter is also gaining literary reputation, as she has contributed a great number of articles, showing careful historic and scientific research upon a variety of subjects connected with silk culture, to many periodicals. She is editor of several silk departments in western agricultural papers. In short, the name of her achievements is legion. She has lately been instrumental in introducing silk culture into a missionary village in Turkey, and also into the schools of Indian territory, where, it is said, silk culture will prove an efficient means of civilizing the red man.

ABUSES OF CARICATURE.

New York Tribune, August 3.

Caricature is a powerful weapon in the hand of Truth. Mr. Delane wielded in England an influence unrivaled in his day in shaping public thought and directing ministerial policy; but even the strongest leader in his great journal was weak in comparison with the political cartoons in Punch. For a whole generation the masters of English caricature have been at work, and their power has steadily increased. Mr. Tenniel's pencil is a great force, of which sagacious statesmen have to take account in their forecasts of the movements of public opinion. A few months ago the grand figure of General Gordon standing behind an earthwork at Khartoum and looking across the desert for a glimpse of redcoats touched the hearts of Englishmen and swayed their judgment. That cartoon was more effective than the best reasoned arguments of party journals or the fiercest denunciations of the orators in opposition. The secret of its power was its inherent truthfulness. This is the element which has imparted to nearly all the cartoons in Punch their characteristic vigor and has steadily enlarged their influence. They do not misrepresent political situations. They are neither unjust nor unfair. They are grounded upon the truth; and for that reason they can be subjected to the unerring test of time. A few years ago a long series of these cartoons were reprinted, and in no instance was injustice apparent. It was a complete satirical history of the politics of that country, and withal honest and truthful.

Herein lies the explanation of the singular fact that caricature has not exerted so powerful an influence in America as in England. It has not been grounded upon the truth. It has been not only violently partisan in party politics, but it has been often grossly unfair and cruelly unjust. Take for example, such a picture as the one reproduced in yesterday's Tribune from the old files of Harper's Weekly. It represented Abraham Lincoln on the eve of his inauguration in 1861 tippling with drunken loafers and cracking jokes for their amusement, while outside was the hearse, bearing the Union and the constitution to the grave. The revolting picture, seen after the lapse of twenty-three years, stirs in every honest heart a thrill of indignation. The life of Abraham Lincoln is now a sacred household story. Whoever reads it knows that he accepted the nomination for the presidency, and, after his election, made the journey to Washington oppressed with a terrible weight of responsibility. Every letter that he wrote, every speech that he made at that time, revealed this sense of responsibility, and also his humble dependence upon higher than earthly powers. All the world knows that he was neither a clown nor a sot, and that in the great crisis which followed his inauguration it was his solemn duty to defend the constitution and to save the Union. That cartoon to-day is recognized as a glaring libel, a ruthless and abominable pictorial lie. And what it seems to-day it was when it first appeared—utterly false in spirit and detail. It was then an outrage upon public morals, a cruel and cowardly stab at the patriotism of the north; and time has only deepened the impression which it first produced.

Now this has been the glaring weakness of the American school of caricature. It has not adhered scrupulously to the truth. It has too often waged warfare upon established character. It has always been careless, sometimes even reckless in its facts. It has too often misrepresented political situations and been cruelly unjust to public men. It has made a base and ignoble use of its opportunities for political satire. It has again and again served the ends of partisanship and personal malice. It has been converted into a mud spattering vehicle of malignant defamation. At no period in our political history have the abuses of caricature been more conspicuous than in the present campaign; and on the other hand never have political cartoons possessed so little influence in affecting men's judgments. The attempt made to defeat Mr. Blaine's nomination by the circulation of foul pictures was a signal failure; yet the cartoon-makers have not been discouraged and are still employed in the same despicable trade of misrepresenting facts and assaulting established character. The effort to defeat the republican leader by means of highly-colored and indecent pictorial lies has only tended to increase his popularity and to bring reproach upon the degraded art of caricature. Satire is useful in politics only when it is founded upon truth. When its edge is broken by contact with hard facts it becomes the dull tool of defamation and is useless as a weapon of offense—harming only the coarse hand that wields it.

A JAPANESE FILTER.

How Everybody Can Have Pure Water at Small Expense.

Popular Science Monthly.

The Japanese use a porous sandstone hollowed in the shape of an egg, through which the water percolates into a receptacle underneath; the Egyptians resort to a similar device; the Spaniards use a porous earthen pot. But these and other similar contrivances can not be thoroughly cleansed; after the most thorough rinsing some impurities will remain in the pores of the stone. Spongy iron and carferal are open to the same objection; they will answer well for a short time, but soon become contaminated by pollution retained in their pores. Sponge, cloth and felt, unless cleaned every day or two with hot water, will do more harm than good, and the average servant girl will not clean them or any other filter unless under the eye of her mistress.

The various forms of filters that are screwed to the faucet have only to be hastily examined to be discarded, as there is not sufficient filtering material in them to be of much utility, and they very soon become foul and offensive. Buck says: "There is no material known which can be introduced into the small space of a tap-filter and accomplish any real purification of the water which passes through at the ordinary rate of flow."

The various complicated closed filters, filled with any material which cannot be removed for cleansing, condemn themselves. No amount of pumping water through them at different angels, which is at all likely to be used, can cleanse them of the impurities that adhere to the mass and in the pores of the filtering material used. Parks, in his "Manual of Practical Hygiene," says: "Filters, where the material is cemented up and cannot be removed, ought to be abandoned altogether."

The various metal filters in which the water comes in contact with metallic surfaces, either iron, lead, tinned iron or zinc, are objectionable from their appreciable influence upon the water retained in them for any considerable time. Pure block tin is the least objectionable of any of the metals.

The aim of most filters is to remove impurities from the water speedily—as rapidly as it escapes from the faucet. Experiment shows that effective filteration cannot be accomplished in this way, as the water does not remain long enough in contact with the filtering material used to become purified of much that might be removed by slow filteration or percolation through the same appliance. Of all the filtering materials mentioned it seems to me that sand and charcoal are the two that accomplish the best results, and of these vegetable charcoal is the best.

In an Old Book Store.

From the Philadelphia Times.

In the gallery of a large old book store Saturday sat a man who had a clerical look. A volume was open before him, from which he seemed to be making copious extracts, entering them in a bulky note-book. Above the well-filled shelves behind him was the sign "Religious." He had the air of a man who was feeling thoroughly at home.

"What's he doing?" asked a reporter.

"Making up his sermon," replied the bookseller. "That's a very common thing. You see they come in here and hunt up some musty old forgotten book of sermons and copy out of it without giving themselves away. Yes, it's piracy, I suppose, but it's of a genteel kind. What's the difference, anyhow, if the sermons they steal are good, and nobody finds them out? Most of the sermons made up this way are better, no doubt, than the appropriators could write, and the hearers are the gainers."

"Don't you find it troublesome to have them make a reading room and study of your store?"

"Oh no, I don't mind that. They are out of the way up there and then they bring more or less trade. One of them, by the way, brought me a little too much. He made the store a regular lounging place, bought a book occasionally and soon began offering to sell me books. This went on for some time before I tumbled to his little game. He had been stealing my books and selling them back to me. That discovery closed our transactions and I had him arrested. He was the only black sheep I ever found among them, however."

"Do you lose many books by theft?"

"A great many, no doubt, but it is hard to catch them all. Sometimes we miss one volume of a set and that worries us more than if they had taken the whole set. There's another petty piece of thievery that is sometimes practiced on us, and it's done very neatly, too. The thief wants an engraving from some book, and while he is apparently looking at it he slips in a wet string against the engraving, closes the book, replaces it on the shelf and goes on from shelf to shelf examining other books. After a little while he goes back to the book in which he put the string, finds the engraving loose and removes it. I caught up with that trick by finding the string in the book."

"Who is the queer-looking old customer over there, twirling his thumbs and gazing at the shelves?"

"He's one of our 'characters.' That old fellow has been coming into the store for the last fifteen years and he's always twirling his thumbs like that and reading the titles of the books."

"Does he ever buy?"

"I asked one of the young men the other day if old 'thumb twirler,' as we call him, ever bought a book, and he said never, except once, and then he invested in a 'ten-center;' it seems to make him perfectly happy to wander around the store just as you see him now."

A lady now came in and bought a lot of books, paid for them, and, after telling the clerk to "put them with the others," walked out. The book seller said: "That woman is the mystery of my store. We have no idea who she is; she has never given us her name, although that is the sixth or eighth time she has bought books in that way. They are done up in packages and stored in the basement and marked 'for the unknown lady.' She's a crank, I guess. Lots of them come here. There's one now, looking at 'Hogarth.' He comes in two or three times a week, picks up the volume, handles it tenderly, asks the price, shakes his head sadly, and after gazing at the engravings for half an hour, lays the book down gently and shuffles out. I'd give it to him cheerfully, but I really think I'd deprive him of more pleasure than I'd give him. Coming here to look at it seems to be an occupation for him."

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY, Aug. 12.

The grocery lines are in good business, shipments into the interior being free. Island rice has advanced to $6 50 under higher advices.

Stocks come through firmer to-day the influence of yesterday's weakness being lessened. This influence was the failure of the Wall street bank.

Overland receipts include 190 boxes soap, 21 cs bacon, 100 cs canned meat, 5 tcs hams, 12 hf bbls butter, 2 bxs tobacco.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—past 24 hours: 215 ctls wheat, 204 bbls flour, 178 ctls oats, 1,038 ctls bran, 20 sks potatoes, 6,070 lbs wool, 100 lbs hides, 64 cs eggs, 16 bxs fruit, 1 bx butter. Also 1,401 ctls wheat, 401 bbls flour, 6,126 lbs wool, 2,633 lbs hides from the eastern section.

FREIGHTS—At San Francisco large iron has accepted 42s 6d spot with smaller sized still arriving under prior charter at 45s. The local market is inactive in both spot and futures.

WHEAT—From abroad to-day neglected markets are reported. Chicago and New York are lower, but San Francisco is steadier mostly under local influences. Our own market shows absolutely nothing of new interest. As far as can be learned here there is nothing doing in the interior on city account. The California farmer appears to be a willing seller at ruling prices, more willing than had been expected. Shippers have had no difficulty in securing grain for the large number of vessels under charter and business has exceeded the general expectation. The very heavy yield of the northwest should also cause the farmer to sell as willingly as does his California neighbor. Should there be a general hanging back the export trade will suffer and stocks will pile up. Not only this, but it will be serious work to carry the movement, for money is not plentiful.

OATS—Best feed cannot be quoted at over 49c, as supplies are large and sales difficult to make. The market still shows a declining tendency.

GREEN FRUIT—Apples and pears in large movement. Best apples bring 50@60c, while inferior drag at 25@30c. Bartlett pears bring 75c@$1, and the call is good for choice. Other fruit remains as last reported.

BUTTER—The market is in better feeling, but prices show no quotable changes. A consignment of eastern solid is at hand. The first cost of California roll has risen to 27½@30c. We quote good to choice roll 26@27½c.

EGGS—Very few fresh coming in and they readily command 20c. Stocks mostly comprise rough lots and sales were made at 17c.

CHICKENS—Young sold at $3 50@4. Old bring $5 50@5 75.

WOOL—Eastern mail advices note a fair business at old prices, with manufacturers buying freely but quietly what suits their purpose in quality and price. Values do not improve as stocks are large and there is plenty to choose from.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The State of California reached San Francisco at 8:25 A. M., and the Oregon sailed at 10.15 A. M.

The Am bark Wildwood was at Hong Kong July 12, for Victoria.

The Kincardineshire has sailed from Glasgow for this port.

The Walla Walla has sailed for Seattle for a cargo of coal to this port.

With respect to marine insurance risks in the eastern hemisphere the Boston Advertiser says: The recent loss of the Rauier and Johnathan Bourne are viewed by the underwriters with dismay. It seems to be a generally accepted theory that the bottom of the seas in the eastern hemisphere have undergone serious and widespread changes through volcanic influences, and that navigation is exposed to new and unknown perils. Some companies have determined not to insure East Indian risks for the present at any price, and the rates of all are being increased in a marked degree.

Of Confidence.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla is a medicine that, during nearly 40 years, in all parts of the world, has proved its efficacy as the best blood alterative known to medical science.

SARSAPARILLA (extracted from the root of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla) is its base, and its powers are enhanced by the extracts of Yellow Dock and Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other potent ingredients.

IS your blood vitiated by derangements of the digestive and assimilatory functions? is it tainted by Scrofula? or does it contain the poison of Mercury or Contagious Disease?

THE leading physicians of the United States, who know the composition of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, say that nothing else so good for the purification of the blood is within the range of pharmacy.

ONLY by the use of this remedy is it possible for a person who has corrupted blood to attain sound health and prevent transmission of the destructive taint to posterity.

THOROUGHLY effective renovation of the system must include not only the removal of corruption from the blood, but its enrichment and the strengthening of the vital organs.

RELIABLE witnesses, all over the world, testify that this work is better accomplished by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA than by any other remedy.

BLOOD that is corrupted through disease is made pure, and blood weakened through diminution of the red corpuscles is made strong, by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

PURIFYING the blood and building up the system require time in serious cases, but benefit will be derived from the use of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA more speedily than from anything else.

MEDICINE for which like effects are falsely claimed, is abundant in the market, under many names, but the only preparation that has stood the test of time, and proved worthy of the world's confidence, is

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

Sold by all druggists: Price $1; six bottles for $5.

WOMAN'S SUFFERING AND RELIEF.

Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its former elasticity; driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once, while the special cause of periodical pain are permanently removed. None receive so much benefit and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women.

A Postal Card Story.

I was affected with kidney and urinary

Trouble—

"For twelve years!"

After trying all the doctors and patent medicines I could hear of, I used two bottles of Hop

"Bitters;"

And I am perfectly cured. I keep it

"All the time!" Respectfully, B. F. Booth, Saulsbury, Tenn.—May 1, 1883.

BRADFORD, PA., May 8, 1875.

It has cured me of several diseases, such as nervousness, sickness at the stomach, monthly troubles, etc. I have not seen a sick day in a year, since I took Hop Bitters. All my neighbors use them.

MRS. FANNIE GREEN.

$3000 Lost.

"A tour to Europe that cost me $3000 done me less good than one bottle of Hop Bitters; they also cured my wife of fifteen years' nervous weakness, sleeplessness and dyspepsia."

R. M. AUBURN, New York.

SOUTH BLOOMINGTON, O., May 1, 1879.

First—I have been suffering ten years, and I tried your Hop Bitters, and it done me more good than all the doctors.

MISS S. S. BOONE.

Baby Saved.

We are so thankful to say that our nursing baby was permanently cured of a dangerous and protracted constipation and irregularity of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.

The Parents, Rochester, N. Y.

WOLFE'S

Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps.

As a general beverage, necessary corrective of water rendered impure by vegetable decomposition or other causes, as limestone, sulphate of copper, etc., the AROMATIC SCHNAPPS is superior to every other alcoholic preparation. A public trial of over thirty years duration in every section of our country of UDOLPHO WOLFE'S SCHNAPPS, its unsolicited indorsement by the medical faculty, and a sale unequaled by any other alcoholic distillation, have secured for it the reputation for salubrity claimed for it. For sale by all druggists and grocers.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins by Grocers, labeled thus: JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London, England.
